They can be prescribed for the rehabilitation of chronic rheumatology, orthopaedic, traumatic, neurological diseases and peripheral vascular diseases - which are deemed to cause documentable and significant functional failure, in spite of continuous medical treatment and nursing. Additionally, they can be prescribed following orthopaedic surgeries, residual symptoms of slipped disc interventions, st. post-lesions of extremities, st. post-spinal lesions, rheumatoid arthritis, other arthritis, sero-negative spondylarthritis, osteoarthritis, chronic low back pain, other neurological diseases, peripheral vascular diseases, infantile defect of extremities, haemophilic arthropathy, infantile cerebral paresis and muscle atrophy, serious defect of one extremity, juvenile rheumatoid arthritis, arthrogryposis, Larsen syndrome, birth defect of the spinal cord, scoliosis and other multiple joint dislocations, congenital symptoms with joint contracts and defect of posture.

A separate decree (23/2007. (V.18.) regulates therapeutic services that may be reserved with the support of National Insurance Fund [2]. In Hungary, they are as follows :

I. Thermal baths of national quality (baths whose reputation and visitor numbers, together with their appeal, is beyond a local and regional level) [3]. The General Directorate of National Health Resorts and Thermal Baths allows waters deemed thermal to be known as recognised thermal spas. The Directorate is constantly carrying out on the spot surveys of technical conditions, equipment and the quality of the services, as well as the turnover of patients, and the thermal baths are categorized on this basis (national, regional or local level). It is worth mentioning a few internationally renowned thermal baths, such as the Gellért Baths, the Széchenyi Bath and Spa Thermal Pool Complex, the Lukács Spa and Swimming Pool, and the Rudas Thermal Baths.

Thermal treatment supported by National Insurance may be ordered with a bar-coded medical prescription, written out by a doctor in accordance with a separate decree. In the case of foreign patients under public decree, who originate from a country with which Hungary has an international cooperation agreement, the country code and the patient's social insurance/identification code should be stated. Separate thermal treatments may be claimed for at the same service provider. One should start to use the prescribed treatments within 30 days of requesting them. If a patient has to stop treatments due to justifiable changes in their health condition, and the treatment cannot be continued, any remaining treatments can be ordered again. The treatments may be ordered two times in one calendar year, without consideration of the type of illness. The courses within one treatment may also be combined. Within the thermal treatment courses, four different treatments may be prescribed for 15 occasions, and in the case of casualty or post-operative cases, up to 20 occasions. There may be 15, 30, 45, or 60 and up to 80 treatments altogether.

Thermal treatments financed by Social Security may only be claimed for from service-providers who have a valid cooperation agreement. The National Health Insurance Fund (OEP) publishes a list of service providers contracted with OEP to provide thermal treatment services, which also shows those who have ceased to have this entitlement. It is published on a quarterly basis in the Official Journal of the Ministry of Health.
